

The 13th BMEB International Conference and Call for Papers

Bali, Indonesia, August 29–30, 2019

The region's premier institution, Bank Indonesia Institute, is pleased to host the inaugural international conference on the theme "Maintaining Stability, Strengthening Momentum of Growth Amidst High Uncertainties in Digital Era", in collaboration with the Asian Development Bank (ADB) and the Asia-Pacific Applied Economics Association (APAEA). The conference will be held in Bali, Indonesia on the August 29-30, 2019.

Papers in all areas relating to the theme are welcomed. Specific topics of interest are related, but not limited to:

- Global economic landscape shift (topics that explore new sources of economic growth; trade policy issues; and spill-over of global shocks are particularly welcomed).
- Macroeconomic dynamics (papers that explore determinants of inflation, exchange rate and interest rate dynamics including forecasting are particularly welcomed).
- Macro-financial linkages (papers that explore issues relating to financial intermediation; and linkages between business and financial cycles including central bank role and policy strategy are particularly welcomed).
- Post-GFC policy implications (papers that explore lessons for public policy including inflation targeting framework (ITF) and monetary policy in the post-GFC era are particularly welcomed).
- Macroeconomic fundamentals (papers that explore research issues in areas of supply-side economy, productivity and technology shock, labor and human capital, as well as the impact of demographic shift on macroeconomic fundamentals are particularly welcomed).
- New growth model (papers that explore the role of demographic transition, human capital and growth potentials; and the role of financial and technological innovations and productivity in economic growth are particularly welcomed).
- Digital innovation (papers that analyse the role of digital innovation in macroeconomic and financial system behaviour are particularly welcomed).
- Payment system platform and new financial services (papers that develop hypotheses relating to e-commerce and the role of financial technology are particularly welcomed).
- Development issues in Asia and the Pacific (empirical papers, survey articles, historical analyses, and policy-oriented work that advances the understanding of Asia's development, specifically in ADB's member countries, including papers that discuss: (a) the role of digitalization for financial inclusion and development; (b) the linkage between financial sector development, inequality, and structural transformation; and (c) the distributional impact of macroeconomic policy).

Across all the above topics, papers related to computable general equilibrium and dynamic stochastic general equilibrium models are equally welcomed.
